Editorial

The Indian Institute of Social Reform & Research, involves in various academic, research oriented, social reforms related and scientific activities, is going to publish the Issue-3; Volume-1 of our IISRR- International Journal of Research; both Print (ISSN 2394- 6873) and e-Versions (ISSN 2394- 885X). We would like to request interested persons to visit our website (www.iisrr.in) for details.

This year (2015) is the 150th Birth Anniversary of Sir Ashutosh Mookherjee; the eminent Educationist & Educational Administrator, great Mathematician & Physicist, bright lawyer and an eminent Judge. He made great contributions in dissemination and reforms in education and educational administration in India. He had fought with the then British Ruler for maintaining autonomy of the University; and never compromised with the Government at the cost of interest of the University. He made immense contributions to Mathematics and Physical Science too. In fact, he is one of the pioneering personalities to promote research in Indian universities. We feel very much honoured for dedicating this Issue-3 of the IISRR- International Journal of Research in memory of Sir Ashutosh Mookherjee, while commemorating his 150th Birth Centenary.

General Issues, except special issues, of our Journal cover an eclectic combination of topics rather than to make it an exclusive preserve of any particular discipline. We shall make attempts for the journal to not only showcase the diverse range of research but also to provide researchers and practitioners a platform to discuss pertinent issues that have wider implications on the different facets of academic, social world.

We would like to extend our thanks and gratitude to the Authors of Articles, Reviewers, Advisers, Members of the Editorial Boards and all other persons who have extended their direct and /or indirect cooperation for publishing this Issue-3 of IISRR- IJR, and the future issues too.

We welcome academicians, researchers, and potential contributors for contributing their articles, research findings, reports of case studies etc. for the next issues of this Journal; and we are looking forward to receiving their contributions. We welcome submission of articles not only from established areas of research, but from new and emerging fields of research too. We cordially invite your views, suggestions, and criticisms for improving the future issues of the IISRR-IJR.

We would like to request all Educational Institutions, Institutes of Higher Learning, and Research Organizations for organizing different collaborative activities; including publishing of papers, abstracts, proceedings of seminars, symposium, workshops, etc. organized by their esteemed institutions.

Cooperation of all concerned is earnestly solicited.

Abit Kumar Das
Editor-in- Chief
